What is CLEP?
The College-Level Examination Program (CLEP) is a series of examinations in college subjects that allow individuals to earn college credits for what they already know regardless of how the knowledge was acquired – through advanced course work, independent study, work experience, professional development, or extracurricular activities. Students from any college or university can take a CLEP exam at Edinboro University’s open testing center. Edinboro students can earn credits for successful scores on CLEP exams (most are worth 3 credits but some are worth 6, 9, or 12 credits), and can earn a maximum of 30 credits from multiple CLEP exams. (If you are not an Edinboro student, please check the CLEP policies at your school.) CLEP exams are approximately 90 minutes long and are administered on a computer.

What is a Successful Score?
CLEP calculates your score by converting your “raw score” into a “scaled score” that ranges from 20 (the lowest) to 80 (the highest). A score of 50 is considered passing (with the exception of the level 2 Foreign Language exams which are higher) and is equivalent to a C grade. You receive instant score reports following completion of the exam, however, the official transcript from CLEP is received by the college or university that you designate approximately one week after taking the exam. Once the official transcript is received for a successful CLEP score, the credits are posted to your transcript. (Edinboro students: Your GPA is not affected as no grade is assessed for the exam and unsuccessful CLEP scores are not reflected on your transcript.) You may not repeat an exam of the same title within three months of the initial testing date.

CLEP Exam Preparation Tips and Suggestions

1. Review the exam description online or in the CLEP Official Study Guide. How much do you know about each topic? Are you familiar with the terms, names, and symbols that are mentioned? If you’re familiar with nearly all the material, you’ll need a minimum amount of review. However, if more than half is unfamiliar to you, you probably need to study extensively to do well on the exam.

2. Review the “knowledge and skills required” outline for the exam. This outline appears within each exam description that is contained in the study guides.

3. Answer sample questions in the CLEP Official Study Guide or in the Individual Exam Guides and use the answer key to determine your number of correct responses. Although these questions won’t appear on the actual exam, the proportion of the sample questions you can answer correctly should be a rough estimate of the proportion of questions you will be able to answer correctly on the exam.

Do you need more review?

1. Check with the bookstore to find out which books and materials are used for the equivalent course in the exam subject. You may find the course syllabus on Edinboro’s website as well.

2. Study textbooks and other resources used in the comparable course. Match the content outline and the “knowledge and skills” outline for the exam to the table of contents in the textbooks to be certain that areas of study match exam content.

3. Find course materials and lectures online at websites like MIT OpenCourseWare, Carnegie Mellon’s Open Learning Initiative, and the Online Education Database. Most of this material is offered for free. Educational websites, like those offered by PBS or the National Geographic Society, can be helpful as well.

4. Check with the library about locating study aids relevant to the exam you plan to take. These supplementary materials may include, for example, videos or DVDs made by education-oriented companies and organizations, language tapes, and computer software.
